HYACINTHS

These lovely spring-flowering bulbs make a beautiful show in beds and borders and are exceptionally fine for culture in pots and glasses. Cultural directions follow:

In Pots: Good light soil is of first importance; rich loam, decayed cow-manure, and sand, in equal parts, will suit them best. Use 4- or 5-inch pots and plant so that top of bulb is level with the surface of the soil. After potting, place them on a bed of wet ashes or ordinary soil and cover to a depth of 5 or 6 inches. When well-rooted, which will be in about six weeks, they may be removed indoors. The best planting-time is October and November.

In Beds and Borders: Plant bulbs 6 inches apart and 5 inches deep, in light, rich loam, which should be previously dug to a depth of 18 inches. The best time to plant is October and November. Give beds a slight covering of small litter, straw, or hay, to protect against severe winter weather. This should be removed about the end of March.

In Glasses: Fill the glass with clear water, so that it just touches the base of the bulb, and then place in a cool, dry place for a month, until the roots reach the bottom of the glass, when they may be brought to the light. A sufficient supply of water should be kept in the glass, and all decayed skin should be removed from the bulbs from time to time. A lump of charcoal placed in the bottom of the glass will keep the water from fouling. The water should be changed every two or three weeks.

NARCISSI (DAFFODILS)

The Daffodils are truly the heralds of spring, for they give us the first touch of color in garden and border after the winter snows are gone, and by careful selection of varieties, their season of bloom may be made to extend to May. All are hardy, with the exception of the Polyanthus varieties, which require a covering of litter over winter. Plant bulbs one and a half times their own depth, but in light soils set a half inch deeper, 3 to 4 inches apart for the smaller sorts and 5 to 6 inches for the larger ones.
